

THE WRITER AS CONJURER

Everyone loves a story. Let's begin with a house.

So it is that esteemed poet Philip Levine invites our imaginations into his poem, "A Story." Immediately, our imaginations conjure up a house. We take hold of Levine's poem like a dog with a bone. We run with it. It becomes ours. How does this happen?

During this one-day luncheon seminar with Page Lambert

We will explore the writer's mind at work by delving into our cinematic imaginations, into the literary element of rising action, into the filmic technique of montage, and into the use of details as storytelling tools.

This will be a hands-on creative seminar, appropriate for all genres and all levels of experience.

Come eager to write!

Where: Mount Vernon Canyon Club, Golden, Colorado

When: Saturday, March 24th, 2018 8:30 am – 4:00 pm

Cost: $105 (register by March 10th); $120 (register after March 10th)

Includes: continental breakfast, catered luncheon, beverages

Registration Information: http://www.pagelambert.com/workshops\_speaking.html

Questions? Contact Page Lambert, page@pagelambert.com, 303.842.7360

